Key Accomplishments
as Dean 2002-13

Provided strong management and leadership on fiscal issues, growth, and strategic planning:

- Developed new resources for the College, including support for new faculty lines, research funding, and productivity increases. College funding increased four fold in ten years, despite cuts to the University.
- Developed a concise strategic plan which has been completed. Revised strategic plan to reflect values and goals of departments, and new metrics of student success and program/degree assessments.
- Developed a $20 million capital campaign plan connected with an innovative "net zero energy " building renovation project. Secured grants from the state of Utah, private donors, professionals, and the Department of Energy.

Strengthened the College's academic offerings, especially by adding significant and recognized programs:

- The City and Metropolitan Planning Department was added to the College in 2003, and eight new nationally-recognized faculty were added, bringing a strong reputation to the University. The department also includes a new Ph.D. program. From a few undergraduates in 2002, the department now boasts more than 150 students, including 50 graduate students and 20 fully supported Ph.D. students. The Masters program received professional accreditation in 2010. The program faculty are ranked in the top ten nationally by Academic Analytics.
- Established a new program and degree in Multidisciplinary Design, along with a series of design research efforts under the common name of the "Spark Labs", which are partnerships with the medical school, undergraduate studies, and technology commercialization. Also established new interdisciplinary programs and certificates, including Historic Preservation, Urban Design, and a Masters of Real Estate Development, which is a joint degree with the David Eccles School of Business.
- At the University level, established an interdisciplinary Sustainability Research Center and was instrumental in establishing the Office of Sustainability and cross-disciplinary sustainability curriculum. Headed the deans' council on Sustainability.
- Established the architecture school as a national leader in promoting and developing applied digital modeling and project integration, through the establishment of the Integrated Technology and Architecture Center. The Center also works with passive solar research and reuse of beetle kill wood.
- Established the Metropolitan Research Center, which has received more than $6 million in grant funding in the past 18 months. The faculty of CMP also partner in the DOT funded National Institute for Transportation in Communities.

Increased student engagement and instilled civic responsibility of architects and planners, by enabling faculty to:

- Establish a remote studio site in Bluff, Utah, which sends 20 graduate architecture students to the Navajo reservation to design and build an innovative, off-the-grid home for a family. The program has won multiple design awards.
- Develop an Honors program in the College, which begins by introducing incoming students with an innovative community "think tank" pedagogy. This has become a model for the rest of the University.
- Establish an integrated and continuing urban planning, business, and architecture studio to assist Hispanic neighborhoods with housing, schools, leadership development, transportation, and economic development on the west side of Salt Lake City.
- Develop an on-going architecture program with the Girl Scouts, to encourage female participation in our design programs. (This year, we will be working with AIA national and components to develop an "architecture badge"). Also designed and built highly efficient cabins for the Girl Scout camp, Trefoil Ranch.
