Subject: Meeting tonight
Date: Thursday, April 07, 2016 7:49:45 AM

Tom,

Greetings from Havana. I don't know if it is common knowledge but several of us from Utah Heritage Foundation and its board are all traveling together. Public comment tonight will be affected by their absence.

From my perspective, I continue to be concerned with the form and scale of new construction on our City's Grand Boulevard. The Landmark decisions we are tasked with will affect the fabric of our City for generations to come.

As I travel the world I am always in awe of how careful city planning creates cities that are both grand and livable. The walkability and human scale of Grand Boulevards is a common theme worldwide.

It is the unfortunate task of city planners and commissions to insure that the needs of the public are balanced with the desires of private investment.

Thank you for your ear and for adding this to the minutes of tonight's meeting.

Thoughtfully,
David Scott Richardson, AIA
