II. Updated Training by City Attorney's Office about PCRB reports and GRAMA

Boyd Ferguson went over a new executive order by the Mayor and explained how this will affect the Board. Now when there is a panel hearing, as an addition to the regular report, the Board will also need to determine if the case they are hearing is a high profile case defined as "controversial or already well publicized in the community". Once the decision has been made that a case is high profile, the Board will recommend to the Mayor's office that the report be disclosed. The Mayor's Chief Administrative Officer will examine the facts and circumstances and weigh the public's interest in seeing this report versus any interest in not disclosing it due to highly sensitive privacy issues, etc. Once the final determination has been made, the Mayor's office will publicly release the report.

III. Welcome, Introduction of Guests and Public Comment

Chief Burbank introduced himself and wanted to enforce that he is very supportive of the new executive order issued by the Mayor because he doesn't believe that the SLCPD has anything to hide. He told the Board that what they do is important to him and their report, he relies on to make his final decisions. The process that we have here in Salt Lake City has been vetted throughout the United States and as you look back through history, there have been far less complaints about the SLCPD since this process began. He thanked the Board members for serving and said they have had a positive impact. Chief then answered various other questions from both the Board and members of the public.
