Mayor's Bike to Work Day Feb. 8th

Join Salt Lake City Mayor Erin Mendenhall along with other City employees on Wednesday, February 8th as we bike to work!

The event will start at Liberty Park's North Terrace Pavilion at 7:30AM and will end at the City and County Building. The ride will begin at approximately 8:15 AM. We will have coffee and breakfast on hand to fuel the ride! You can also join us by biking to your place of work on the same day. Take a photo on your route and use the hashtag #SLCBikeThere. Click the link below to view the route map and learn more.

Food Equity Microgrant

Are you looking to increase food access for your home or community? Salt Lake City is launching its first-ever Food Equity Microgrant program to increase resident access to fresh, healthy, affordable, and culturally relevant food.

The grant application is now live and open to individuals, local businesses, and certain community organizations. The initiative is designed to support community-led projects in line with the recommendations coming out of the City's Resident Food Equity Advisors' report released in 2021.

Click the link below to learn more and apply by March 5!

Ballpark NEXT

Salt Lake City is excited to announce the Ballpark NEXT Design Competition—an opportunity for residents, post-secondary students, and development professionals to tell us what they envision for the future of the Smith's Ballpark site.

After 100+ years of baseball on the site, we're excited to get input from you on what's next, and for you to provide your ideas to help the City reimagine uses for the site that will serve the neighborhood, City, and our residents for decades to come! Visit ballparknext.com for competition details and answers to frequently asked questions.
