

Talula Pontuti

Talula Pontuti is an At-Large PNUT Board member who is an incoming Ph.D. student in the Department of Geography at the University of Utah studying food justice, agriculture, and climate change with goals of focusing on mixed methods, and community-driven research. She has worked on sustainability projects on a city level, worked for nonprofits doing urban agriculture, and has been involved with other community-based programs focusing on environmental justice. She is excited to work on the PNUT Board to provide support to the Public Land's work and represent community members in this space.