

SLC Food Equity Microgrant Program

About the Program

The Salt Lake City Sustainability Department created the SLC Food Equity Microgrant Program in 2023 as a funding opportunity to support resident- and community-led projects that address food inequity and increase access to fresh, healthy, affordable, and culturally relevant food in Salt Lake City.

The purpose of the SLC Food Equity Microgrant Program is to build an inclusive community around healthy food choices where individuals living in Salt Lake City have many opportunities to shape, participate in, and enjoy a sustainable, equitable, and resilient local food environment.

Projects must be located in Salt Lake City. Only one application is accepted per household or organization. There are two categories of funding:

- Home Food Production Grants: $250 for residents
- Community Grants: up to $5,000 for community groups, organizations, or small businesses

Funding Priorities

Any food related projects that connect with the purpose and goals of this grant will be considered for funding. Projects that align with the key ideas and recommendations outlined in the SLC Resident Food Equity Advisors' Final Report \(June 2021\) will be prioritized for funding. The four main categories of prioritized projects include:

- Growing Food - projects that support opportunities and access to grow food locally
- Inclusive Outreach & Communications - projects that support accessibility of information about food resources to groups that experience challenges with or exclusion from traditional outlets
- Dignified Food Access - projects that support improving access to healthy and relevant food opportunities that center and respect the agency and choice of individuals
- Healthy Food Environments - projects that support the availability and accessibility of healthy, fresh foods and enhance the quality and character of food environments near where people live

Projects led by and serving those who identify as members of groups that have been most negatively impacted by the food system will be prioritized for funding. Priority peoples and communities include:

- Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC)
- Historically marginalized or under-resourced people and neighborhoods
- People and households living in poverty or with low- or moderate-incomes
- Unsheltered or informally sheltered people
- LGBTQIA2S+ individuals and communities
- People with disabilities
- People with specific health needs
- Veterans
- Adults 65+
- Youth
- Nontraditional students
- People of differing legal status
- Immigrants and the newly arrived
- Formerly incarcerated
- People with deep cultural food relationships
- Groups for whom other funding opportunities are or historically have been limited

Demographic Information

Salt Lake City strives to reach all our residents with the SLC Food Equity Microgrant Program. These demographic questions help us determine if we have connected with a proper representation of our City's residents. The demographic information we collect here will be reported only in aggregate, meaning we look at totals rather than connecting data to a specific individual. Collecting this information helps us understand who we are serving and helps us better design, implement, and assess the impact and equity of our program.

Your answers to these questions will be separated from your application and kept strictly confidential. Your responses will not be used to score your application and have no impact on whether you are awarded a grant. These questions are optional.
